A Repentant Flirt.

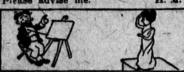

Dear Betty:

I used to keep company with a young man about six years ago and have treated him shamefully; was to marry him, but refused him and he has not had a girl since then. He has tried to win me back several times and always speaks to me when he meets me. I have made a very sad mistake in my life and he has heard of it. I hear from friends he still thinks highly of ms.

A Foolish Guother,

Dear Betty*

A LITTLE Couthern girl met a New la York man of excellent family and fell in love, but her father forbade her marrying him on account of religion, so it was an eiopement. After marriage a daughter was born, and to her father she wrote she had adopted a child, which he believes. Now the child is fourteen veurs and was on a visit to her grandfather, when he told her she was adopted from an institution. Was my friend right to practise the deception?
